Frauenhuber

Since 1824. Vienna's oldest coffee house

A popular coffee house was that of Alois Hänisch, which was located at the old Fleischmarkt until 1824, known for its “witty discussions.” On October 28, 1824, Hänisch moved to Himmelpfortgasse No. 965 (now No. 6), where it became known for its coffeehouse sign. Around 1827, he had the door beams adorned with two life-sized figures by historical painter Erasmus Engerth, one of whom supposedly depicted the first coffee brewer, Kolschitzky, likely based on an original owned by the Coffee Brewers’ Guild. In 1840, the coffee house was taken over by Mr. Kasimir, and later, around 1849, by Mr. Anton Sagorz, who remodeled and improved it. The coffee house became known as Café Herzog, and from 1891 onward as Café Frauenhuber, maintaining its reputation to this day. The building housing Café Frauenhuber has existed since 1746, as evidenced by an engraving by Salomon Kleiner from that time (the original is displayed at Café Frauenhuber). It has been mentioned as a coffeehouse since 1824 and was fully renovated in 2000. We hope to have preserved a traditional Viennese coffeehouse in its authentic style.
